ABOUT JESS

JESS WILSON.

Tech founder · AI & innovation keynote speaker · On-stage interviewer

Few speakers have built the technology they talk about. Jess has, and she interviews the people building what comes next.

COMMERCIAL. PRACTICAL. CURRENT. BUILT FOR REAL ROOMS.

Jess started her first business at 16 and at 22 founded her first tech company, Stashd, which she scaled into 130 countries. She has partnered with Google, Airbnb, TikTok and The Chopra Foundation, and was named by Forbes as one of 1,000 entrepreneurs under 30 to change the world.

On stage she has opened national tours for Tony Robbins and Tom Bilyeu, interviewed Sir Richard Branson in front of 3,000 people, and hosted Dan Carter, Deepak Chopra and Microsoft's CTO. Because she has built and scaled technology herself, and partnered with global brands, she brings a founder's view of what AI and innovation really take to deliver commercial results.

As an Ambassador of The Pillars in Sydney, Jess curates and hosts the What's Next in Tech and Influential Women series, keeping her in the room with leaders from OpenAI, NVIDIA, UN Women and more.

KEYNOTE 01 IWD 2027

Women, AI & the Next Decade of Work

Allyship, women's progress and the future of work alongside AI

Every leap in women's rights has been won by women and the allies who stood beside them. Jess knows this first-hand: her company Women Making Waves raises awareness around women's rights and law reform. Built around the IWD 2027 theme, this keynote connects that history to today's biggest shift: AI is rewriting roles and careers, and the choices we make now will decide who benefits. Educational and uplifting, for men and women alike.

IN FOUR MOVEMENTS

- How far we've come: the progression of women's rights through history, and the next chapter
- Allyship in action: why progress has always needed everyone, and what allyship looks like at work today
- Humans alongside AI: the latest in AI innovation, what's changing in everyday work, and what stays human
- The leadership agenda: leading teams of people and AI, and protecting women's progression

IDEAL FOR

IWD breakfasts and all-staff events, women in leadership programs, tech, finance and professional services firms, and industry conferences. Written for whole organisations.

> "Jess brought fresh perspectives and practical suggestions that deeply resonated, especially with women in technology and entrepreneurship."
>
> Bowie Chen · KPMG

KEYNOTE 02 MOST BOOKED

AI, Innovation & the Next Era of Work

How humans and AI will work side by side, and how to lead the shift

Jess doesn't just speak about AI. She's an active tech founder who built her first AI startup in 2015. Drawing on real-life examples from her own companies and her conversations with leaders from OpenAI, NVIDIA, Google, Microsoft and beyond, she shows audiences the latest in AI and innovation, how people and AI will work together in the next era of work, and what stays uniquely human, without needing a technical background.

AUDIENCE TAKEAWAYS

- Waves of innovation: what past waves of technology tell us about where AI is heading, and what it means for everyday work
- How humans and AI work best side by side, and the skills that matter most
- Real-life lessons from Jess's own startups, and a simple way to move teams from curiosity to confident action

IDEAL FOR

Leadership offsites, tech and industry conferences, sales and client events, and boards wanting a clear view of what's next.

> "From understanding our brief, to the speaker briefing, to your incredible presentation, you were fantastic to work with."
>
> Debra Cerasa · CEO, Jobs Australia

KEYNOTE 03 STORY-LED

The Disruptor’s Mindset

From a small farm town to 130+ countries

Told she “didn’t have it in her”, Jess built a global company anyway. This story-led keynote turns doubt into fuel: the nerve to back yourself, the resilience to keep going when the ground shifts, and the discipline to start again when things don’t go to plan.

AUDIENCE TAKEAWAYS

— How to turn doubt and setbacks into momentum
— The founder habits that help teams move fast with less certainty
— Practical tools for resilience in a world that keeps changing

IDEAL FOR

All-staff events, sales kick-offs, women in business programs and conferences that want energy as well as substance.

5,000+
Opening for Tony Robbins

3,000+
Opening for Tom Bilyeu

Add Jess as your MC, host or on-stage interviewer

The interviewer trusted with Sir Richard Branson

Many organisers book Jess for more than one role: MC for the day, a keynote, and a fireside interview with their headliner or CEO. She prepares deeply, keeps the energy up between sessions and draws out the stories audiences remember. One booking, one consistent voice from open to close.
